Doctor of Veterinary Medicine (DVM) Program

Where Aspiring Veterinarians Develop Their Passion for Animal Health and Commitment to Care.

Student Journey

Commitment to Veterinary Care

St. Matthew's University School of Veterinary Medicine (SMUSVM), located on Grand Cayman, proudly prepares graduates for veterinary practice. Our Doctor of Veterinary Medicine (DVM) program provides individualized support and early hands-on training, which help foster a smooth transition from campus to clinical rotations and then long-term career success.

Clinical Teaching Facility (CTF)

Veterinary students have the opportunity to utilize our immersive Clinical Teaching Facility, which serves as a bridge between theoretical knowledge and practical experience, helping to mold the practicing veterinarians of the future. At the CTF, students gain invaluable experience with a variety of animals, including horses, dogs, cats and more exotic animals such as turtles, blue iguanas and other aquatic life. The carefully curated and designed facilities include:

- Anatomy, surgery, clinical skills and medicine labs
- An exam room (where a rabies clinic is hosted)
- A necropsy room

The CTF helps SMUSVM deliver the hands-on veterinary medicine training that attracts students with a passion for animal healthcare.

Accessible Education

All students joining us from outside of the U.S. or Canada are eligible for the International Grant, a $60,000 USD award disbursed over the 10 semesters of the DVM program. As well, all new SMUSVM students are eligible for the $5,000 USD Opportunity Grant.

"One of the biggest things that sets St. Matthew's aside from other veterinary schools is the small class sizes. Within our own semesters we created pseudo families while we were down there, and there was a huge amount of mentorship and aid available from both the teachers and other students because of that community."
